

The Sovereign State

Time Needed: Two class periods

Materials Needed:

Student Worksheets

Power Point w/projector (optional)

Colored pencils (optional)

Copy Instructions:

Anticipation & Closing Activities (half pages back to back; class set)

Guided notes organizer (1 page; class set)

Create a State Worksheets (2 pages; class set)

Learning Objectives. Students will be able to:

- Identify and describe the four features of a state.
- Differentiate between a sovereign state and the "states" in the United States by deciding whether the four features of a state apply to each.
- List the four roles of government.
- Apply the features and roles of a state by creating a profile of a new, fictional sovereign state and deciding on its priorities.

STEP BY STEP

- ANTICIPATE the lesson by asking students to fill out the Anticipation Activity graphic organizer. Call on students to share their ideas about what makes a country a country.
- DISTRIBUTE one Guided Notes organizer to each student.
- DISTRIBUTE one Reading page to each student.
- READ the reading page with the class, pausing to discuss and let students fill in their Guided Notes organizers. If you wish, project a copy of the Guided Notes organizer as a teaching tool to fill in along with the students.
- ALLOW students to complete the Four Roles of Government graphic organizer. As an alternative, consider projecting the projection master and completing the organizer as a class, OR run the Power Point supplement. The Power Point presents the graphic organizer as an active participation activity so you can have the class tell you as a chorus where each item should go.
- REVIEW the answers by reading them aloud OR by projecting the Four Roles of Government organizer transparency master and completing it as a class OR by running the Power Point supplement
- CHECK for understanding by running the Power Point supplement activities or by doing the active participation activities on the Active Participation Guide.
- DISTRIBUTE one Create a State activity to each student, along with colored pencils if you wish, and review the instructions.
- ASSIGN students to complete the activity.
- ALLOW students to share information about their countries with the class.
- CLOSE by having students complete the Closing Activity organizer on the back side of their Anticipation Activity organizers. Call on students to share what they remember from the lesson.

The State

No, not Texas, Oregon, Vermont . . . Those are states, but “a state” is something more than that. A state is a body of people, living in a defined space, with the power to make and enforce laws, and with an organization to do this. A state does not have to check with any higher authority in order to make and enforce laws. Its own organization, or government, is its highest authority.

The Department of State represents the United States when dealing with other states.

Population

A population is the group of people who are the members or citizens of a state. A population can be large or small. China has a population of more than 1.3 billion people, while the island state of Fiji has just over 860,000.

The population of a state also has a variety of features. The population might be mainly rural or mostly urban. A state’s economic situation might mean most people are very poor, with little access to electricity or even water. Or the people might be generally wealthy, enjoying modern homes, running water, and the latest technology. Often this is connected to the level of education most people within the population have achieved. Populations also have their own cultural traditions, and they usually speak a common language.

Territory

A state’s territory is the area in which a state’s rule applies. A state must have set boundaries. However, countries do not always agree on what each other’s boundaries are.

Boundaries can change over time. Sometimes they change after a war, when the states involved agree on new boundaries. When there is a dispute, states might also negotiate with each other to decide what the actual boundaries should be. Finally, states can purchase territory from other states, although this is less common today than it was in the past. In 1867, the U.S. bought Alaska from Russia for $7.2 million.

Sovereignty

Sovereignty (pronounced SAW-vren-tee) is the ability to rule absolutely within a territory. The principle of sovereignty means that all states are considered equal to each other, and no state may interfere in the affairs of another state. In reality, the world’s states have created a higher authority, called the United Nations. States agree to follow the UN’s rules for dealing with each other — but they don’t have to follow them. Sovereign states are free to set their own foreign policy, meaning the kind of relationships they will have with other states. States also have the power to decide how things will operate inside their own boundaries. Today, though, if a state is unable to keep its population safe and many people are being killed—perhaps even by the government—the UN allows other states to use military force to protect the population.

The Sovereign State

Name: _____

Government

A government is the organization inside a state that controls the actions and policies of the state. A government has four main roles.

First a government makes laws. In this role, the government provides rules for how things inside the state are run. A government is also responsible for protecting the state. In this role, the government provides a military to defend the state against outside attack. Third, a government keeps order inside the state. It does this by establishing law enforcement agencies that deal with criminal activity. Finally, a government usually helps its citizens by providing services people need. This can be anything from a post office to paving streets to providing health care or unemployment benefits.

Government's Roles. Use the word bank below to complete the graphic organizer. Write the four roles in the stars. Then put examples of each role at each point of the stars. Each role has 4 examples.

GOVERNMENT

The Sovereign State

Name: _____

Territory. Draw a map of the boundaries of your new country. Then draw the geographical features inside. Is it on the ocean? Does it have rivers and lakes? Mountains? Canyons? Where are the cities and towns?

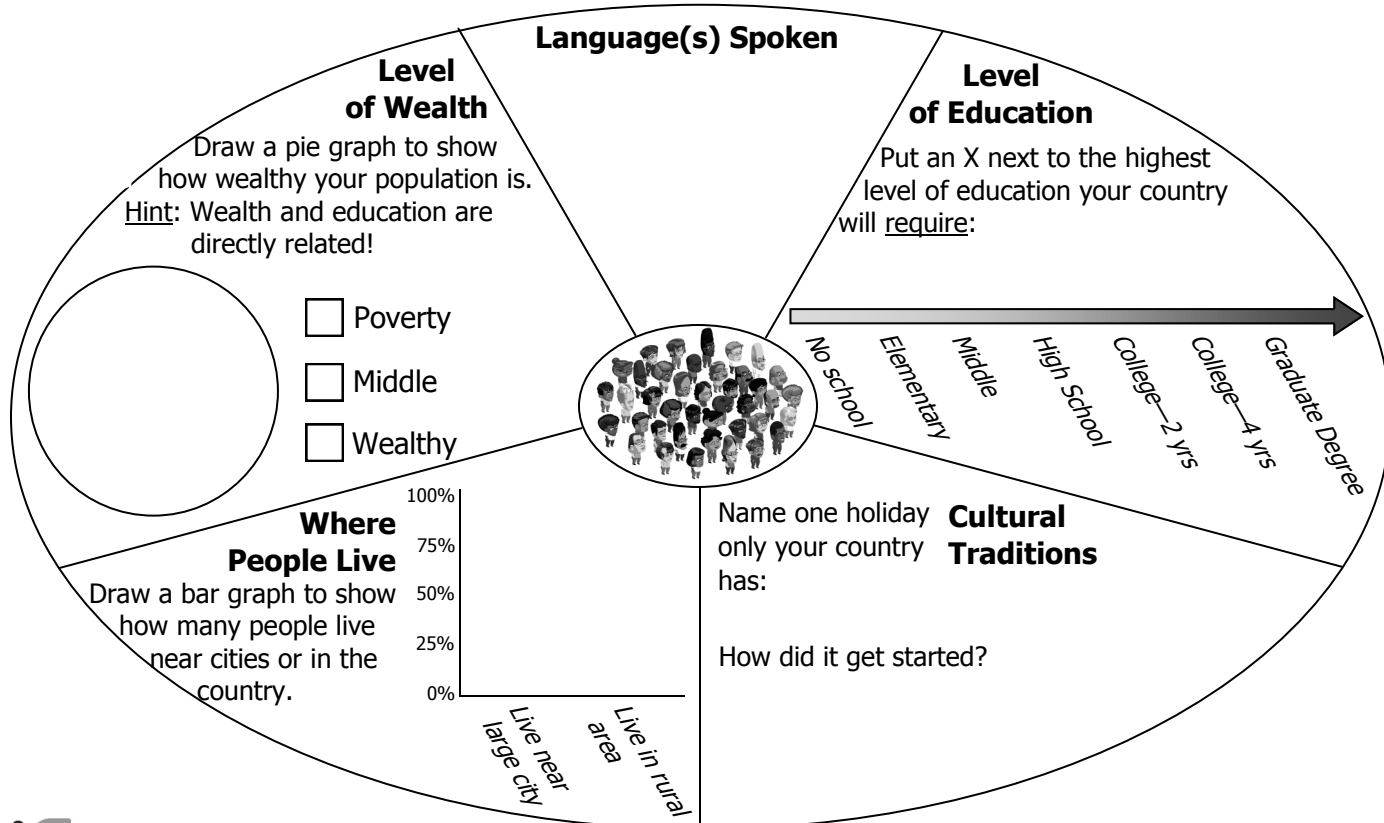

Flag. Draw your country's flag here.

Your Country's Name: _____

Population. Describe the features of your country's population:

The Sovereign State

Name: _____

Government. Choose one feature from each column to create your country's government. Be careful — some options don't go together!

Legislative Assembly

- Citizens elect legislators
- Head of state appoints legislators
- No legislative assembly

Head of State

- Legislative assembly chooses a Prime Minister
- Citizens elect a President
- Dictator appoints self to power

Elections

- Citizens don't get to vote
- Citizens vote every ____ years
- Citizens vote whenever the government calls an election

Protecting the Country. What outside threat do your citizens fear the most? Draw a picture of the threat and how your military is preparing to defend the country against it:

Keeping Order. Paul has been convicted of robbing a bank at gunpoint in your capitol city. Police records show Paul has a history of drug addiction and had a lot of problems as a child. In your country, what would Paul's sentence be?

Helping Citizens. Look at the list of some needs your citizens will have. Decide what your country will do about these needs, if anything.

NEED	MY COUNTRY WILL
Education
Safe Food
Communication
Health Care
Transportation

Making Laws. Your country's governing document is called the Five Freedoms. What freedoms do people in your country have?

3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

Now, name three things everyone in your country knows are against the law:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Active Participation Guide

If you are not using the Power Point supplement, check for understanding by doing the following activities with your class.

A. Is That a State? Write the following list on the board:

- Does it have a population? YES NO
- Does it have a territory? YES NO
- Does it have sovereignty? YES NO
- Does it have government? YES NO

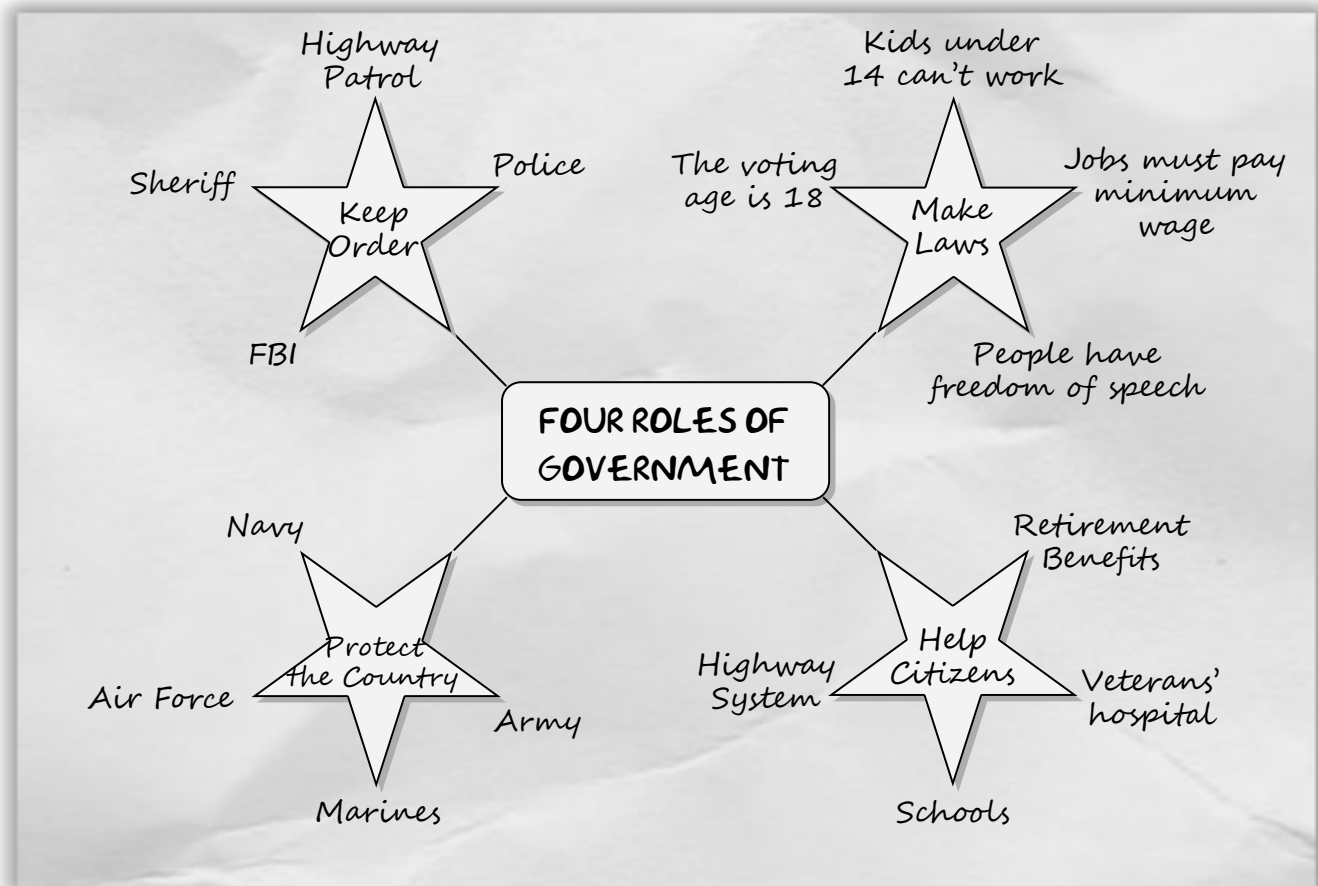

First, ask the class whether the United States is a state. Have them answer “yes” or “no” as a chorus for each question. Next, ask whether the state you live in is a state. Again, have them answer as a chorus for each question. (Answers: United States, yes; individual states, no—they don’t have sovereignty)

B. Mini Quiz. Have the class show thumbs up or thumbs down for each statement:

1. A state can’t have less than 30,000 people. ( Monaco only has 27000.)
2. The boundaries of a territory can change. ( War, negotiation, or purchase)
3. Sovereignty means you have to check with someone above you. ( There is nobody above you.)
4. Government only exists to keep order and provide security. ( Governments also make laws and help citizens.)
5. The 50 states that make up the USA are not considered independent “states.” ( They don’t have sovereignty.)

Government's Roles. Use the word bank below to complete the graphic organizer. Write the four roles in the stars. Then put examples of each role at each point of the stars. Each role has 4 examples.
