Absolute and Comparative Advantage - Check for Understanding

| . . | A  | В  | C  | D | ${f E}$ | $\mathbf{F}$ |
|------------|----|----|----|----------|---------|--------------|
| Clocks     | 30 | 24 | 18 | 12       | 6       | 0            |
| Radios     | 0  | 6  | 12 | 18       | 24      | 30           |

Hypothetical Weekly Production Possibilities - Switzerland (in units of 1000)

|        | ${f A}$ | В  | C  | D | ${f E}$ | $\mathbf{F}$ |
|--------|---------|----|----|---|---------|--------------|
| Clocks | 20      | 16 | 12 | 8 | 4       | 0            |
| Radios | 0       | 2  | 4  | 6 | 8       | 10           |

| 1.       | Which n                                 | ation l | nas an | absolute | advantage  | in the   | production | of each | good? |
|----------|---|---------|--------|----------|------------|----------|------------|---------|-------|
| . | , , ,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,, |         | ins an | account  | aa rantago | 111 0110 | production | or caem | 5000. |

| Clocks | Radios |
|--------|--------|
|        |        |

2. Apply the principle of comparative advantage to determine areas of specialization. Show work below:

| Nations     | Clocks | Radios |
|-------------|--------|--------|
| Japan       |        |        |
| Switzerland |        |        |

| Japan's area of specialization: | Switzerland's area of specialization: |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
|                                 |                                       |

3. Assume that prior to specialization and trade, Japan produced at Point D and Switzerland produced at Point E. Calculate possible gains from specialization and trade below:

| Nations     | Clocks | Radios | ı      |
|-------------|--------|--------|--------|
| Japan       |        |        |        |
| Switzerland |        |        |        |
|             |        |        | Before |
|             |        |        | After  |
|             |        |        | Gain   |

4. Should Japan and Switzerland specialize and trade? Justify your conclusion with evidence from the data.

